FACTS & FANCIES

Frank Fairborn, Jr.

'WHAT'S THE WAR ALL ABOUT?'

"What good does a story do?" It is a young American paratrooper convalescing in a New York hospital who asks the question. His story, a very human story, the work of a very human newspaperman, is printed in another column. It is a story to read and ponder on. It brings the war to this twice-blessed continent in a way which all too few of us have been able to understand.

There are unfortunately good grounds for the boy's resentment of the "spirit" at home and his doubts as to whether we "give a damn," as to whether we know "what the war's all about." There have been hundreds of tragic stories come out of this war. But there is little evidence of the impression they made.

It has been our good fortune or misfortune, in North America, to escape being hurt as this boy has seen his comrades and the people of Britain hurt. We have not faced the cruelty of war as they have or suffered its destructiveness and its treachery. Only those whose hearts have been darkened by the personal sacrifice of loved ones can know the depth of the suffering about which the young paratrooper speaks.

Humanly most of us have sought to have the war without suffering. Believing war to be horrible and wrong, we have closed our minds to the horrors. We have been assisted in making this "escape" by the sacrifices of those who have kept the war from our homes.

Maybe it would have been better had we been hurt as they have been hurt. Then it would be possible to think with our hearts as well as our minds to see, as this boy has seen, that retribution should not stop short of punishment equal to the crime. Maybe we could know better why a just peace, in justice to those who have suffered war twice, cannot be a soft peace; why it is the German people who must be made to pay the penalty of the crime their leaders conceived, but they committed.

THE WHITE CLIFFS OF DOVER

In September, 1940, when free people everywhere faced what seemed the doom of their civilization and Churchill's little island stood alone against the might of the Nazi legions, a poem was published called The White Cliffs of Dover.

With little fanfare, says The Globe and Mail, it took hold on the people's imagination. It has had unprecedented circulation and 271,500 copies of Alice Duer Miller's poem were sold. At the darkest period of the war it told the story, simply and well, of the valor of the British.

Now a motion picture based on the late Mrs. Miller's verse has been released. The movie shows better than almost any other previous picture the essential greatness of the people of Britain. For those who have wondered how the people of the islands were able to withstand the horrible bombings of the Luftwaffe; how they beat back the animal that many were so certain would devour them, and with them all free men; how they were able in their time of peril to throw up a leader of unsurpassed character such as Winston Churchill, this picture has the answer.

The story is very well known. But the movie adds to the poem something that no other medium could. It brings into the sharp focus of reality the willingness to serve, the sense of duty, the love of freedom and justice that are the marks of the true Briton.

For those who forget the sacrifice in British lives in two world wars there is here the tale, vivid and clear, of what happened to one family. Here is the best kind of answer for those who seek to have the relations between the United States of America and Britain cemented so that, as they have fought and died together in these wars, they may work side by side to see that such a holocaust never sweeps over the world again.

The White Cliffs of Dover is a film that every man, woman and child in the Dominion should see. The world "gripping" has been worn thin by overuse, but the picture is all that and more. The cast is excellent. Miss Irene Dunne has never performed better. In the picture she is an American small-town girl who has married into an old British family. Through her eyes one is better able to understand why the British are what they are; what it is that has enabled them to fight on doggedly, with the utmost courage when all looked hopeless and arms were few, and why today the robot bomb will not daunt them.

The picture is effective, not alone because it is so well done, but because it rings so true.

HEAVENLY DAYS! THE BUSTLE IS COMING BACK

According to a fashion display news note from New York, from where we get our fashion ideas since Paris was put out of circulation by the Nazis, comes the news that the bustle is to return as a necessary part of midday's make-up, which causes Editor Frank Irvin of the Durham Chronicle to editorially shout, "Glory Be."

Those of us of mature years can well remember when the bustle was in style many years ago, and the bigger the better. It may be that this year's models will not be as large as some of the former creations, but in a year or two the style may reach the grand climax and madam will be strutting around with one of those posterior extensions that will make her look more like a South American llama than a human being. So be it!

We don't know how the bustle will work in this modern world but it should at least be exciting. It should be a good thing for any of the older ones to wear while learning to skate, but we can see it is a real handicap in a softball game. Perhaps they will have to rechristen it bustle-ball.

With the return of the bustle, it may be that long skirts, those trailing kinds of the 90's will reappear. Remember them? Remember, also, the buggy stands they used to have at the churches so that milady could decorously alight without showing her ankles to the gang that used to stand around the church door and hope for something to happen? Sometimes it did happen, and the poor woman was in disgrace.

Well we hope the ladies make the most of the bustles when they arrive. We hope they won't allow themselves to be out-bustled by the girls of the gay 90's, who appeared in numerous kinds and sizes of bustles. There were the little ones, the big ones, the round ones and the pointed ones, the ones that stayed put and the ones that shimmied when they walked. We have oft-times thought there was a little too much wiggle to some of them to be altogether innocent, but we suppose they flirted those days too.

Then there were the little old fat ladies with the comfortable looking fat bustles; at least they looked comfortable, although there was always considerable coyness when too many of the dear things tried to sit down at once. Those were the days when the chief worry of the feminine sex after a session at the ladies' aid or some similar gathering (they didn't play bridge those days), was "Is my bustle on straight?" Sometimes it wasn't and the wearer looked deformed, but a tug or two by a lady friend made everything look right.

And do you remember those big fellows the more daring of the ladies used to wear? They used to kind of sigh when the old girl sat down. And when a number decided to sit down at once it reminded one of that last breath the railroad engine let loose of when the air was released. We have always thought the idea for these singing tea-kettles must have been born when some bright inventor heard the ladies with the bustles.

Yes sir, the bustle is coming back again, and no doubt some radio program will revise the old song, which we forget, but in which one line stated: "In the middle of the bustle you could hear bustle rustle." But that's the way with style and fashion. All the ladies will be wearing them, although some of them will not need them—very much.

And that's all we know about bustles, but we intend to keep our eyes open and get more information before we write anything more about them.

Like the days of old when the directrice, down, a skirt slit up the side towards the knee, was in style, the poets also went to town. One we remember was a parody on Mary and her lamb, where the poet said: "Who cares a dam for Mary's lamb when we see Mary's calf?"

Bustle! The dictionary describes the word as "to move noisily with commotion; to cause agitation or disturbance." As if the war in Europe were not enough, now Dame Fashion decrees that the women join the brigade of commotionists and agitators.

'WAY BACK WHEN

Frank Fairborn, Jr.

MURDER.—Suicide.—War.—Fire.—Death.—Destruction.—Devastation.—All in a space of seven days. The most hectic, lamentable seven days that the Grimsby district has ever known, and I hope will ever know, but it was all meat to a young, vibrant news bound. A story was a story no matter who suffered. It is still the same today, but the passing of time and the gaining of experience has taught one to do a little "tempering by his steel" when he shoots it over his typewriter keys.

Those "seven days" began on the bright, moonlit Sunday morning of August 2nd, 1914—Just 30 years ago this week—At three o'clock that morning, in front of the Park House hotel in Grimsby Beach, the just alive body of Percy Sparling was found lying in the middle of the road with two bullet wounds in his chest and his throat cut from ear to ear. He died a few minutes after being found.

D. E. Swayze was Chief of Police of Grimsby at that time and also a County Constable. To his credit, he handled that case in admirable fashion. But then the whole case is another story which I will review at a later date.

With everybody in the district agog over the Beach mystery, the gathering of the war clouds in Europe were temporarily forgotten, but the public was brought back to terra firma with a sudden jerk on the morning of Wednesday, August 5th, when the cables, telegraph and telephone carried the word that Kaiser Bill had "Lifted The Lid Off Hell" and that Old Britain was going to put it on again. She did, but it took four long years.

The roar of the Old Lion to her Whelps was heard in Grimsby that morning, in the old Grimsby Club Rooms, (where Kamnacher's now stands) by Lieut. R. T. Johnson, (Now Capt. Johnson, Vancouver, B.C.), Capt. W. W. Kidd, having only gone to his home an hour previous. These militia officers were on their guard and waiting for eventualities, and of course this news rat smelling cheese was waiting too. The call came from Col. Hugh Rose, O.C. of the 44th Regiment. He ordered immediate mobilization of "H" Co. 44th Regt. for duty on the Welland Canal. That being the first thought of the Canadian Militia Department, to protect all lines of transportation that had to do with the feeding of the "Tommys" overseas.

By daylight, Lieut. Johnson, had the village "mustered with placards calling on all members of "H" company to report for duty. Early morning workers were startled to read on the telephone poles, this:

PROCLAMATION

44th Regt. Ordered To The Colours

"H" Company Report At Once

Volunteers Wanted

Apply to W. W. Kidd, Capt.

GOD SAVE THE KING

All members of the company were not available, but at noon on that memorable Wednesday the 44th Regimental band marched down Main street and behind them paraded, the following men, entraining for Canal duty. By the next morning another 30 members of the company had joined the ranks at Welland:

|---------------------------------|---------------------|
| Capt. W. W. Kidd | Pte. W. C. Watts |
| Lieut. R. Moxley | Pte. E. Parker |
| Lieut. R. T. Johnson | Pte. Chas. Carter |
| Lieut. S. G. Chambers | Pte. E. Green |
| Regt. Sergt.-Major Geo. Watkins | Pte. H. Tasker |
| Sergt. McCarthy | Pte. Fred Walker |
| Sergt. Case | Pte. Herb. Davidson |
| Corp. Chivers | Pte. Chas. Snyder |
| Corp. Karr | Pte. Fred Hataway |
| Pte. E. Beal | Pte. Joel Davis |
| Pte. J. Flaherty | Pte. H. Moore |
| Pte. W. Schwab | Pte. Clendenning |
| Pte. W. Fisher | Pte. Chambers |
| Pte. B. Flett | Pte. Bender |
| Pte. J. Jenkins | Pte. Glover |
| Pte. G. L. Burke | Pte. Sharp |
| Pte. Thom. Graisley | Pte. Art Cox |
| | Pte. Wm. Chivers |

Capt. Kidd could have taken 200 men out of Grimsby that day had he been able to. But his orders were only to mobilize for canal duty. At the same time The Independent office was under siege by men of "Fighting B" Squadron, 2nd Dragoons, demanding of Lieut. J. A. M. Livingston, some action. The young officer could only sit and wait for orders and advised his men to that effect.

The war is on. The whole district is in a commotion. Then comes Saturday afternoon, August 8th. The main street is packed with people talking war and the fire bell peals forth its dreadful summons. Chief Tom Walker and his laddies rally to the call and were faced with one of the most disastrous fires that this district has ever known. Grimsby Beach was in flames. Damage $50,000; Insurance $10,000; 34 Cottages Burned; Caused by the upsetting of a coal oil stove; Beamsville and St. Catharines fire departments assisted Grimsby.

There was no waterworks system in the Beach in those days and the struggle was a tough one, but hard work and brains won out, and saved the main portion of the Beach.

That folks, is the gist of the most terrible week this section of the Peninsula has ever known. Next week more about the war and the boys that won it.

Re-enact Last Spike Ceremony

FIFTY-NINE years after he, as a boy, witnessed the driving of the last spike, coinciding the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's and Canada's first transcontinental railway line at Craigellachie, B.C., Col. Edward Mallandaine, of Caledon, B.C., was an interested spectator as members of the Kinmen Club of Revelstoke, B.C., re-enacted the historic 1885

"last spike" ceremony as a highlight of Dominion Day celebrations in Revelstoke. Proceeds of events sponsored by Kinmen during this period were applied to local charities, including the Kinmen Milk for Britain Fund, and the Revelstoke Civic Centre.

From Montreal, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company forwarded to Revelstoke Kinmen the mallet used by Donald A. Smith (later Lord Strathcona) to drive the last spike. This added further authentic detail to the reconstruction of the 1885 tableau which featured costume pageants and living, home-grown bands.

Col. Mallandaine is shown at right congratulating the youth who impersonated him in the re-enactment of the "spike" ceremony, and in the background are Kinmen who participated.

The Home Executive

The widow of Thomas A. Edison is an inventor like her husband. What she has invented is what she terms a far better name than "housewife" for a woman whose sphere of specialized activity is the home. The other day she said: "Women should never be called 'housewives.' All these years (and she is 79) when I have filled out questionnaires, I have always called myself a 'home executive.'" Her famous husband, who made a great many things run, never ventured to run the home. Another thing she said in a pre-birthday interview was: "Whenever I asked him about running the house, he always said: 'That's entirely up to you. That's your job. It is mine to provide the wherewithal!'" Mrs. Edison considers it very important that a woman should have a budget adequate for the home, and that this is essential for domestic peace. Her last word of wisdom was, "I can't think of anything worse than a woman going to her husband every time she wants something for the household."

Window Glass—Post-War Problem

The next time you look out your window, stop and think a moment that the pane of glass through which you are looking and which you accept as an every-day convenience is a scarcity and a non-existent necessity to millions and millions of people whose homes and businesses have been destroyed in this war.

A big bomb of the modern block-buster type causes breakage in unprotected window glass in an area a tremendous distance from the point of its actual explosion.

Due to the terrific Allied bombardment of the European Continent and the retaliatory bombing sorties on England, there will be an enormous amount of broken window glass which will have to be replaced after the War. In Belgium and in France—whose factories in pre-war days supplied a large part of the world's export glass—most of the valuable and complicated machinery needed for the manufacture of glass will have to be replaced and conservative estimates forecast that it will take at least four years for these factories to get back into production; therefore, it can be readily seen that it is going to be up to the Allies to supply the window glass for the post-war reconstruction requirements of the world.

England, the United States and Canada are practically the only window glass producing countries in the world today and the plants in these three countries are going to have a difficult task taking care of the world's needs, particularly due to the fact that people are going to be more than ever glass-minded after this War. Glass walls and glass kitchens which are forecast in post-war new home designing are going to add to the tremendous shortage.

For these reasons the window glass manufacturers of England and Canada expect to be called upon to produce window glass to their utmost in the post-war period because it will take several years for any new plants that may be built to get into full time production.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! We are really doing a thorough inspection job during canning operations. Safeguarding the food that is being stored in jars means rigid inspection of each step in home preserving. Vegetables require special attention.

If you did not can any of the vegetables at the beginning of the season you may want to store some of the second crop in sealers. Although acid vegetables such as, pickled beets, red peppers and tomatoes are readily processed in boiling-water bath, the non-acid vegetables should be done in a pressure cooker. However, if you have small jars with a perfect seal, success may be assured by the water bath method if every precaution is used.

Important canning rules for the safety of vegetables are:

1. To permit a perfect seal the jar rim and top must be smooth, even, no nicks, no imperfections.
2. Equipment—jars, measuring cup, knife, spoons, funnel, two large bowls, saucepan, processor or deep kettle, tea towels, brush and box of salt—should be assembled before the "canning bee."
3. Wash jars in rich suds and get them clean using a good brush. Rinse the jars thoroughly.
4. Sterilize by placing a clean towel in the bottom of a pan and putting the jars on their sides with matched glass tops beside each one, cover with hot water and boil fifteen minutes. Leave in hot water until needed.

5. Thorough inspection of vegetables is necessary. Discard any old blighted, bruised or ones with decay.
6. Washed vegetables get a three minutes' pre-cooking. This shrinks them and sets colour. Have the water boiling. Time the 'boil'.
7. Now hot vegetables go into hot jars. Allow one inch at the top of each jar when you can peas and corn. Use the cooking water to fill the jars. Add one teaspoon salt to each pint jar. Wipe off the top of jar—one pesky bit will keep the jar from sealing.
8. Dip the rubber ring into hot water (having soaked them in a cup of warm water with a teaspoon of baking soda in it for five minutes or so) and place on jar. On with the lid. Screw band down tightly; then loosen (turn back one quarter inch).
9. Carefully lower jars into hot water bath in a kettle with a wire rack in the bottom; add more hot water to cover two inches over the jars. Jars should be one inch apart. Cover the processor.
10. Count cooking time when the water actually begins to boil. Process corn 3 hours in water bath. Process sweet peppers 45 min. Process tomatoes 20 min.
11. When time is up lift rack with jars from water. If no rack, dip some water and use a thick cloth to lift them out. Screw hand tight. Cool jars away from draft, then turn upside down to test for leakage.

THE QUESTION BOX

In answer to many queries about preserving vegetables by salting, we give the following directions, stressing thorough cleanliness of vegetables, drying after washing with absorbent towels, the use of dairy salt and a cool storage place.

Mrs. D. M. suggests: Raspberries stored raw have kept successfully by the following method: Select firm, clean berries. Pack into sterilized jars gently. Cover with boiling syrup. Put on a hot rubber ring and adjust the tops. Seal tightly. Place in a tub in which a towel has been folded in the bottom. Pour boiling water down the inside, enough to cover 3 inches over the top. Put a lid on the utensil and cover with several heavy towels. Leave in water bath overnight.

Answer: We have found this method successful for raspberries and rhubarb. A cool, dark storage place is essential however.

Take a Tip:

When using all-purpose flour for making pastry you will get good results if you follow these rules:

1. Use 2 tablespoons less of all-purpose flour to substitute for each cup of pastry flour called for in a recipe.
2. Blend in lard or hydrogenated fat until the mixture is mealy. Fat should be finely blended with all-purpose, whereas it should be only blended with pastry or cake flour until it is the size of coarse oatmeal.
3. Add water quickly and lightly. Every unnecessary stroke tends to make pastry tough.
4. Chill thoroughly in a covered bowl.

Don't times change. Any used car nowadays brings a fancy price even without a first-class paint job.

A supply of wheeling wool for Seaboot stockings is now on hand.

Three ambitious young boys staged a play, the proceeds being turned over to the Navy League Women's Committee for Comfort. The boys are Johnny Jones and brother David of London, Ont., who were visiting in town, and Johnny Mitchell, a local lad. Let's have more spirit like this.

Two visitors from the U.S.A. enthusiastic about the work we are doing, each filled a Ditty Bag while vacationing. Won't you fill one?

Time is growing short to get your tickets on the Hand Made Bed Spread. They are 25c each and the cause a worthy one.

F.O. Bill Wilson

Presumed Dead

(Burlington Gazette)

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, Water street, have received further word regarding their son Flying Officer Bill Wilson, who was reported missing over Germany early in the year, and although the department at Ottawa still classifies him as missing the letter adds that no hope is held out now for him being alive.

There was at the time of the flight a crew of eight in the bomber, and a few weeks after the first wire Mr. and Mrs. Wilson received word that six of the crew had been killed, one was a prisoner and another was unaccounted for.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson held hopes that the one unaccounted for was their son, but the eighth member has now turned up as a prisoner of war in Germany, accounting for the full crew.

"Bill", as he was generally known in the town here, had made twenty flights over Europe and had some narrow escapes before his final flight. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will have the sympathy of their many friends here in the loss of their son overseas.

(Note: At the time of his enlistment F.O. Wilson was the well known and popular manager of the Grimsby A. & P. Store and the fiancé of Miss Joyce Shelton.—Ed.)

Many an acquaintance has been cut as a result of a sharp tongue.

Dear Carm:
Many thanks to yourself and brother members of G. C. of C. for yet another 300 cigarettes. Grimsby does itself proudly in the manner it looks after its beauty at this time of the year. All my Grimsby boys are fine and working hard. Best wishes to you all. Thanks again.

Dear Grimsby:

Thanks ever so much for the cigarettes. The show has at last started and we should be home soon. Not much news as to casualties etc. but everybody seems quite pleased. Hope to see you all soon. Best regards, Thanks a million for the smokes. Am fine and dandy. Give my regards to all those who make this gift possible.

Cpl. Harvey Eason.

Thanks you very much for cigarettes received June 13th, 1944. They are greatly appreciated.

Geo. Silver,

Dear Mr. Millyard:
Received cigarettes today and sure was glad to get them for I have been out of them for some time, so thank you and the rest of the C. of C. for what they are doing for us over here.

Cpl. E. W. Luey.

Many thanks for your cigarettes. Very much appreciated.

Doug. Boyd.

Dear Mr. Millyard:
Thanks again for another 300 smokes. The way the boys from home are receiving smokes, (according to letters in the local papers), the draw on the cow must have been profitable.

By the way, Bobbie Robertson (baseball and hockey fame) mentioned the other day that he had never received any cigarettes. Thought you would like to know this. Thank the contributors for me.

Doug. Farrell.

Cigarettes received today. Please convey my thanks to all concerned.

Wilson Johnson.

Be Careful With Overseas Address

Omission of Unit Numbers and Names delays mail to Armed Forces. Approximately 100 letters daily are being received at the Base Post Office for the Armed Forces at the Front, which lack the number and name of the Unit, but bear such unofficial directions as "Somewhere in France," "Canadian Forces in France" or "B.W. E.P." etc. Omission of the number and name of the Unit is a certain cause of delay, since all Armed Forces letters are sorted according to Unit at the Base Post Office for despatch. No instructions have been issued that mail for the Armed Forces Overseas should be addressed to a theatre of war rather than to an actual unit as heretofore, and it is necessary that such incompletely addressed letters be returned to senders from the Base Post Office. Mail to the Armed Forces Overseas should, as in the past, be addressed as follows:

Regimental Number,
Rank, Surname, Initials,
Full Details of Unit—i.e. Squadron, Company, Battery, etc.
Regiment or Branch of Service,
Canadian Army Overseas.

RATION BOOKS WHEN VISITING FRIENDS

Everyone visits friends more often during the summer vacation days than at any other time. Guests should take along their own ration books as their hosts may be short of rationed supplies.

The Prices Board warns not to take loose coupons from a your book. It is illegal to present loose coupons for the purchase of rationed commodities, and also illegal for the storekeeper to accept them.

Feeding The Guns Of An Empire

Shells by the thousands are pouring forth from this Quebec plant where a whole community of workers spend their days nonchalantly tucking T.N.T. into containers destined to explode where they'll do most good in scattering the Hun. This photo shows a worker pouring liquid T.N.T. into anti-aircraft shells.

Put as Canada's fighting men join the Allied forces for the knockout blow to Germany vast quantities of shells are needed and vast numbers of workers are needed to produce them. Seven thousand women and three thousand men are needed now on shell filling and shell manufacturing plants across the Dominion.

Postal Clerks Don't Like Fish

Lobsters, codfish in Base Post Office catch.—Clear skies—summer days—fine fishing weather—but not at the Base Post Office. The parcel repair men are not boasting of their luck—though just the other day their daily catch included two lobsters and a cooked codfish. Unfortunately, the lobsters had been packed in glass jars in a soldier's parcel, despite the repeated warnings of the Post Office not to send glass through the mails.

The codfish, several pounds of it, has been enclosed in a large jar with only a "push on" lid in another soldier's parcel. The final results in each parcel were much the same. The "sea food" literally broadcast its presence immediately on arrival at the Base Post Office and it was necessary to take the nauseous parcels outside the building to unpack, so overpowering was the aroma. As usual, it was found that the glass containers had broken in the one parcel leaving the package an odorous wreck and the "push on" lid, on the tin of codfish had run true to form—squeezed open in the other parcel—with disastrous results.

Postal authorities cannot understand why any citizen at this period of the war, and after so many warnings, continues to send contents of this nature in fragile glass jars, or in tins with "push on" lids which so easily come open. If the sender of a parcel would bear in mind that his or her parcel is but one of millions—the packing in mail bags—the handling on trucks and trains—the packing of heavy mail bags in holds of ships—the three or four thousand-mile journey and then delivery possibly under "front-line conditions"—they would surely exercise all necessary care in safe-guarding the contents by proper packing.

EXTRA RATIONS FOR FARM HELP

The farmer's family need not share their rationed commodities with those helping out on farm labor. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board have arranged to issue coupons to cover the number of meals served to the extra help. Applications for these coupons should be made at the Local Ration Board.

The Board has endeavored to make it as easy as possible for the busy farmer's wife to obtain these extra rations. The application calls for only essential facts, such as the amount of work done, the number of men employed, the number of days they will be working, etc.

Those who are employing workers for a period of two weeks or longer should ask their hired help for their own ration books as soon as they arrive. Rationed foodstuffs must be purchased for them with coupons from their books.

When Canada's Guns Roar

Ranging from the 5.5 that fires a 190 pound shell a distance of nine miles to the Bofores 40 mm anti-aircraft weapon that sends a 2 1/2 pound projectile 6,000 feet in the air, the above chart shows seven types of heavy weapons the Canadian Army is currently using in Normandy and Italy. Canadian gunners have taken an active part in the famous Montgomery barrages that have been preceding Allied tank and infantry attacks in France. Artillery ammunition production is being increased in Canada, and an urgent call has gone out for thousands of additional workers for shell manufacturing and filling plants.

CONTINUATIONS

From Page One

WHAT GOOD DOES
that I didn't believe could happen.
I saw things that, well . . . I don't think people like that should be allowed to foul up this world.

"My father had it right. He was in France in the other war, and he got sore as hell when they didn't go into Germany. Boy, listen if the same thing happens this time, well, there are going to be an awful lot of mad guys coming back to this country. You'll see."

A thin-faced man in the next bed stirred and groaned, a comic book dropped out of bed.

"My leg . . . my leg . . ." he moaned, biting hard on his bottom lip and trying to keep his voice below the torrent of swing music.

The young paratrooper went on,
after a brief look at him.

"The Germans killed defenseless men. They killed our medics . . .
unarmed fellows who were out there taking care of Germans as well as Americans. I saw a lot of our paratroops, dangling from chutes caught in trees . . . and their throats were cut. I saw others on the ground with broken legs, and slit throats. They were killed without ever having a chance."

"It made you turn away, hating the guts of every German. It made you want to kill every German you could find . . . with bayonet, knife, grenade, carbine—anything. I couldn't wait."

"That's how I felt, and feel right now. But if you write stuff like that it just comes out words and people don't get the feeling, because they haven't been there and aren't going. You see my point?
I got hate for Germans. But the people can't hate like I do, just by reading about my life."

He turned his face into his pillow.

VICTORY IS NOT

skillful pilot whose personal example has inspired the squadron he commands. Much of the success it has achieved can be attributed to Squadron Leader Hodson's excellent leadership."

The award of the bar to the D.F.C. made in March, 1943, was accompanied by this citation:

"This officer has commanded the wing for nearly two months and during that time has led it on 18 operational missions. He has had a long and distinguished operation career during which he has proved an excellent leader. His keenness and efficiency have been outstanding and are reflected in the high standard of operation efficiency achieved by his unit."

The United States D.F.C. was awarded "for an extraordinary achievement while participating in more than 20 combat missions in conjunction with United States Army Air Force operations. He displayed great courage and skilful airmanship."

A pre-war pilot, he joined the R.C.A.F. permanent force on January 3, 1938. He took his training at Trenton, graduating as a pilot in March, 1939. He then took an instructor's course at Winnipeg.

In May of the same year he was sent to Camp Borden as an instructor and later to the Central Flying School at Trenton. In December, 1939, the Commonwealth Air Training Plan came into being and he was on the staff at Uplands — the first Service Flying Training School opened. From there he went to No. 8 S.F.T.S. at Moncton, where he became chief instructor.

He went overseas in November,
1941, as second pilot of a Liberator.
After a period at an operational

The Bureau of Statistics reports that Canada's population last year, including members of the armed forces, was 11,812,000 or an increase of 158,000 over the previous year. The estimate is based on a count of the births and deaths recorded and on counts of the first three ration books issued. The increase since 1941, the census date, was 305,000.

Town employee "Big Jack" Smith never finished his noon day serenade on the town bell at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, because Fire Chief Alf. LePage wanted to play with the fire bell. Fire department answered a call to Grimsby Beach where a kids' playhouse, furniture and all, built in the bush back of Fourth street went up in smoke.

Several of the Grimsby High School Cadets have just completed two weeks' training with the Lincoln and Welland Reserve Regiment at Niagara Camp. They were Allan McPherson, Ian Stevenson, Don Mogg, Don Catt, John Pasche, Arthur Bryden, Doug. Alton and Don McAlonen. Several of the boys were playing with the L. & W. bugle band.

Walrus husk maggots attack the nuts of English, Japanese and Black walnuts, and convert the green tissue of the husks into black pulp. These insects, the larvae of a two-winged fly, may be controlled by spraying NOW with 1 1/2 lb. lead arsenate and 3 lb. hydrated lime in 40 gal. water. The spray should be repeated seven days later.

Fruit Stands
May Be Allowed

The question of permitting fruit stands and service stations along the Queen Elizabeth highway is receiving serious consideration from the Ontario Department of Highways at the present time, but no decision has yet been made either for or against them. Hon. George Doucette, minister of highways, told members of the Westworth county road committee and suburban road committee in an informal conference Tuesday morning.

Mr. Doucette said that the chief obstacle to fruit stands was the accident hazard from the parked vehicles of customers. B. E. Comar, deputy reeve of Saltfleet township, pointed out the importance of the roadside fruit trade in the Niagara district, as an advertisement for this renowned fruit belt, as a service to the tourist public and as a market for the fruit farmers.

Things are not like they used to be. Even the railroads are making big money.

Two Killed In Motor Accident

Two women were killed instantly and three other persons seriously injured about two a.m. Tuesday when an automobile crashed into the rear of a stalled transport on the Queen Elizabeth Way.

Dead are Mrs. Beatrice Arnold, 21, of Elm st., Toronto, and Mrs. Jean Sharron, also of Toronto. Both suffered fractured skulls and other injuries.

The accident occurred about a half-mile east of nearby Winona. The westbound automobile—driven by Philippe Riendeau, Fort Erie hotelman—struck the rear of the transport in charge of William D. McKee, of Thorold who had stopped on the highway because of engine trouble.

There were four passengers in the automobile, including the two women, but the extent of the injuries to the others was not available immediately.

Dr. A. F. McIntyre, of Grimsby, who responded and attended the injured, said the two women had been killed instantly. They both were reported to have sustained
